1. Given a set of . Draw a flowchart to input 5 numbers that include both positive and negative values, count the number of positive values (including zero values) and the number of negative values found in the set. After the required values are determined, print out these counted values.

2. Draw a flowchart that will read and print the names and individual scores of 10 students for a particular examination. Also, determine their average and total score, and print it out.

